REJOICING BY THE GEORGIANS OVER THEIR GREAT SUCCESS-THE MEETING FAVORED

BY GOOD WEATHER-RAIN ONLY

Sea Girt, Sept. 5.-Fortune favored the promoters of the sixth annual meeting of the New-Jersey Riflemen this week. The last match had been shot and only three or four were shooting on the long ranges to-day when it started to rain at The weather the rest of the week had been fair and clear, although at times the was the match for the Wimbledon Cup, which was presented by the National Rifle Association of Great Britain to the National Rifle Association of America in 1875. It has been shot for every year since that time. The winner this year is Captain George T. Cann, of Savannah, Ga., whose score was 103 out of a possible 150.

Each of the ten competitors had thirty shots, and the distance was 1,000 yards. The targets were placed directly behind the 300-yard range and were conspicuous by their large bull's-eyes. ANNUAL MEETING OF THE YOUNG MEN'S Captain Cann shot with a special military Winchester ritle, and only six points handleap were allowed him, while those who shot with the ordinary Springfield rifles received eighteen points. With the six added to Cann's score, his total was 109. Lieutenant E. C. Wilson, also of Savannah, who is probably one of the best all-round shots in the country, made a score of 99. He used a special rifle, and, accordingly, no handicap was allowed him.

Captain Cann never expected to win the match. He has had little practice on the 1,000. yard targets, but he made an excellent showing, evercome with joy when they realized that they

The matches all closed at 5 o'clock. There were fewer entries this year and more interest. Sergeant John Conie, of the 12th Regiment, was disquallified, and his scores were thrown out in matches Nos. 2 and 9, owing to his using a Winchester rifle, which the range officers say is not a military rifle. Sergeant Conie has appealed to the National Executive Committee.

HIS MEMORY A BLANK.

CAPTAIN CANN, OF GEORGIA, WINS THE A SOUTH JERSEY FARMER, WHO HAD BEEN MISSING SEVERAL DAYS, DOES NOT KNOW WHERE HE HAS BEEN.

Woodbury, Sept. 5 (Special).-John C. Somers, a August 20, and for whom unremitting search has been made, has been found. At 9 o'clock this morning he went to a house at Second and Spruce streets, Philadelphia, where a daughter had formerly lived. He was recognized by the family, who, at his request telegraphed to Joseph L. Reeves, of this city, who, accompanied by J. W. Merritt, went to the address and brought the old man to this city. The strange feature of the case is that has ossurred since his disappearance. morning he could tell nothing, even forgetting the season of the year. He knows nothing of his whereabout until he arrived at Second and Spruce sts. He is emaciated, and his clothing tells a story of neglect. Since he met his friends his memory of neidents which happened before he left home is clearer, but sheds no light on what transpired during his stay in Philadelphia, where he went to transact some business on August 29, and where he was seen by two neighbors.

Many of his friends think that he had been drugged and kept in hiding until this morning in hope that a reward would be offered. He is seventy-four years old and a man of strictly temperate habits.

We will give Lasker the benefit of the doubt in the latter instance, for he had this game to spare, having won the first prize in the previous round. The three draws—against Maroczy without a fight, and practically also with Scalechter and Walbroit—were played to the score. So much for the debit side. The twelve games on the credit side were won legitimately, except the one against Showalter, which he should have lost, and the one against Showalter, which he should have lost, and the one against Showalter, which he should have lost, and the one against Showalter, which he should have lost, and the one against Showalter, which he should have lost, and the one against Showalter, which he should have lost, and the one against Showalter wherefore takes his place at the head by reason of his undoubted superiority.

Maroczy—When the young Bungarian won the amateur champloinship last year at Hastings it was generally admitted that, had he played in the master's fournament instead, he would have given a good account of himself. This opinion was proved to be correct on the present occasion. Unconscious of his strength, or perhaps overestimating his opponents at the beginning of the tournament, he galined confidence after having crossed swords with some of them, proving equal to the best and superior to many of the others. Of all the opponents, he told us, he feared Steinitz and Teichmann most. He could not explain way. That may account for the fact that he hardly made a fight against the former, and was glad win a draw with the latter. All the others he met cheerfully and with confidence, predicting aimost exactly the hot result of his score of the last week's rounds. He only lost one game, and should have won at least three James that he gave up as draw (notably one against Walbrodt.)
